Symposium: Awards Ceremony & Junior Workshop

On Monday, June 28th we will have our annual Junior Workshop!

It will start at 8 am UTC, and we will have many exciting activities for you - including the Awards Ceremony at 2pm UTC. We won't tell you your overall ranking until the Ceremony, so make sure to attend! ;-)

Also, in the spirit of sharing, we would like to have some presentations about your work on Monday. This is why we will reach out to some of you during this week, and ask about a speaker spot during the workshop on Monday. If we do so, please feel honored ;-)

Simulation Tournament

With the round of 16 being released yesterday, we are going straight to the quarter finals!

You can find your simulated videos and results here -- it really is getting tense (we even had to have an extension)!

And for the Semi-Finals and Finals we will have Live-Streams!

- Join us for the Semi-Finals live, June 26th 2pm UTC!
- Join us for the Finals live, June 27th 2pm UTC!

Results of Challenge 1

The results of Challenge 1 are out!

What's next

It may not look like it, but the competition is getting towards the end, in the sense that we'll have the last daily gatherings already, although there are still some interviews happening on Saturday and Sunday (all UTC time). If you still feel like it, we may still release some more technical challenges, just for fun (and so that we have stuff to talk about at the Symposium on Monday) -- do let us know if you'd appreciate something like that by replying to this email!

As always, should you have some questions, please do not be afraid to reach out.

Have a great rest of the day!
